PROGRAM DESCRIPTION: To kick off the New Year, we will be welcoming, a regular speaker at MHVSHRM on legal topics important to HR practitioners. She will present a comprehensive legal update on important issues for 2015, including: New York and federal wage and hour law developments, the "ban the box" movement (restrictions on asking about criminal convictions), employment law by executive decree, federal agency developments (e.g., at the EEOC and NLRB), expanding paid sick leave requirements, and updates on the implementation of the Affordable Care Act. An engaging speaker and knowledgeable authority, Ms. Lindeman is always a popular presenter. Please join us for this topical presentation.

ABOUT THE SPEAKER: Devora Lindeman is a partner with Greenwald Doherty LLP. Her practice is focused on advising clients on day-to-day employment challenges such as discrimination and harassment complaints, wage and hour issues, accommodations to individuals with disabilities, compliance with employee leave laws, issues related to recruiting and hiring, and terminations and layoffs. Ms. Lindeman represents businesses in employment related litigation in federal and state court, before government agencies and in mediations and arbitrations. She also reviews and drafts employee policies and handbooks, and assists employers with employment agreements. Ms. Lindeman is a nationally-acknowledged authority on cases relating to religious discrimination in the workplace. Ms. Lindeman publishes and lectures widely on the legal aspects of human resource issues, and provides compliance and management training for businesses and professional organizations. She is a regular contributor to HumanResourcesIQ.com.
